

Four Years Around the World on Triumph

An Inspirational Story of Adventure and Discovery

In 2008, two riders set out on a journey that would change their lives forever. They rode their Triumph motorcycles around the world for four years, covering over 100,000 miles and visiting 50 countries.

Their journey was filled with adventure and discovery. They rode through deserts, mountains, and jungles. They met people from all walks of life. And they learned about themselves and the world in ways they never thought possible.

Their story is told in the book Four Years Around the World on Triumph. The book is an inspiring tale of adventure, friendship, and the power of dreams.

A Journey of a Lifetime

The journey began in England in 2008. The two riders, Adam and Tim, had always dreamed of riding around the world on motorcycles. They had spent years planning their trip, and they were finally ready to set off.

Their first stop was France. From there, they rode through Spain, Portugal, and Morocco. They then crossed the Sahara Desert and entered West Africa.

They continued their journey through South America, Central America, and North America. They rode through the Our Book Library rainforest, the Andes Mountains, and the Rocky Mountains.

In 2012, they reached Alaska. They had ridden over 50,000 miles and visited 25 countries. But they weren't ready to stop.

They turned around and rode back through North America, Central America, and South America. They then crossed the Atlantic Ocean and rode through Europe.

In 2016, they finally returned to England. They had ridden over 100,000 miles and visited 50 countries.
