As a young woman, Jennifer was diagnosed with a rare and debilitating autoimmune disease that left her bedridden and in constant pain. Doctors told her she would never walk again, but Jennifer refused to give up. With unwavering determination, she pushed herself through grueling physical therapy and eventually regained her ability to walk.

However, Jennifer's journey was far from over. In her early thirties, she was diagnosed with breast cancer. This time, she faced the possibility of not only losing her ability to walk, but her life. Again, Jennifer refused to be defined by her illness. She underwent surgery, chemotherapy, and radiation, and fought the cancer with everything she had.

Through it all, Jennifer's unwavering faith and her love for her family and friends kept her going. She learned to find joy in the smallest of things, and she never gave up hope.
